BOBBY NORFOLK PRESENTS

Fighting for Freedom

RACE & CULTURE IN EARLY ST. LOUIS

Imagine a time when steam-powered paddle boats crowded the downtown riverfront, including many that traded in human cargo!

Join Bobby as he returns to this historical era in St. Louis when people of color were considered property. Bobby examines the many myths, facts, and legends involving both free black men and slaves. Through amazing stories, he interprets and brings to life this fascinating era. Bobby also revisits historical sites in St. Louis, as well as the famous people who lived here.

Highlights include:

- Slavery Sites in St. Louis
- The Trial of Dred & Harriet Scott
- York, of Lewis & Clark Fame
- Scott Joplin and St. Louis
- Jim Beckwourth, the Mountain-Man

As a former National Park Service Ranger at the Old Courthouse and Arch, Bobby creates provides fascinating glimpses into the past that are entertaining, thought-provoking, and sometimes unsettling.
